Licensees should claim or imply only professional credentials possessed and are responsible for correcting any misrepresentation of their credentials by others. Professional credentials include highest relevant degrees, accreditation of graduate programs, national voluntary certifications, government-issued certifications or licenses, professional memberships, or any other credential that might indicate to the public specialized knowledge or expertise in professional counseling.

8) Knowingly offering or providing services to a client when the licensee’s ability to practice is impaired; failing to seek assistance for problems that reach the level of professional impairment; failing to, if necessary, limit, suspend or terminate his or her professional responsibilities until it is determined that it is safe to resume work; or offering professional services when the licensee’s personal problems or conflicts may harm a client or others. Causes of impairment may include, but are not limited to, the abuse of mood altering chemicals and physical or mental problems.

d) Supervision

1) Permitting a supervisee or intern under his/her supervision or control to perform, or permitting the supervisee or intern to hold himself or herself out as competent to perform, professional services beyond the supervisee’s or intern’s level of education, training and/or experience.

2) Allowing a supervisee to violate the rights of clients, permitting a supervisee to violate the confidentiality standards or client privacy, or failing to provide clients with professional disclosure information and inform them of how the supervision process influences the limits of confidentiality, including who will have access to records of the professional relationship and how these records will be used.

3) Participating in any form of sexual or romantic contact with supervisees. Nonprofessional relationships with supervisees that might impair the supervisor’s objectivity and professional judgment should be avoided and/or the supervisory relationship terminated.

e) Evaluation, Assessment and Interpretation

1) Failing to have appropriate education and training for each specific assessment, to recognize the limits of the licensee’s competence, and to perform only those functions for which the licensee is prepared. In particular, licensees using technology-assisted test interpretations must be trained in the construct being measured and the specific instrument being used prior to using the technology-based application.

2) Failing to inform prospective research participants or their authorized representatives fully of potential serious after-effects of the research or failing to remove the after-effects as soon as the design of the research permits.
